Bruce Rosen was quoted in the Insider NJ article “Lawmakers Call for QAnon Crackdown as More Women Follow Baseless Conspiracies.”

The article discusses the role of social media sites in monitoring their platforms for baseless claims and those that incite violence.

But First Amendment Attorney Bruce Rosen says social media companies should have been cracking down on accounts that were inciting violence way before the election. “These platforms have not been enforcing the violation of terms services and didn’t find them crazy enough early to shut them down,” Rosen added.
