It took a jury only two hours yesterday to clear Louis Pine, the Montclair man charged with vehicular homicide and aggravated manslaughter, of all counts following a fatal 91-mph crash in the Lincoln Tunnel in 2014.

“There is no celebration for this case, which involved the death of a man who was obviously beloved by his friends and family,” said defense attorney Joseph Hayden, who represented Pine, 42, in the trial. “But justice was done by the verdict because this case arose out of a medical event which ultimately caused the accident.”
